

THE WAVE EXHIBITION: HOW COLLECTIVE INGENUITY IS CHANGING THE WORLD

The WAVE exhibition is taking place in Paris (France) from 10 September to 5 October 2014. WAVE is an impacting exhibition of innovations coming from France and from various countries in the world. The very suggestive title How collective ingenuity is changing the world shows the approach of the exhibition that can increase the value of the numerous initiatives from all around the world which find suitable solutions so as to tackle the main economic, social and environmental challenges of the planet.

The exhibition has been organized by the financial institution BNPPARIBAS and displays innovative experiences coming from countries in Latin America, Africa, Asia and Europe. Moreover, a significant number of experiences coming from different cities of France are presented.

The event explores the main tendencies ongoing in the different continents. The issues explored are: maker movement, co-creation, sharing economy, inclusive economy, circular economy.

The exhibition venue is in Paris, at the Parc de la Villette, 211 Avenue Jean Jaurès. Entrance is free and open to all interested people.

To know more

WAVE website

Presentation of the exhibition

The 5 currents of WAVE

