

The 6th World Neem Conference

Organized by the Neem Foundation from India

October 2012

The Indian Neem Foundation is announcing the 6th World Neem Conference in Nagpur, Central India, from 21st to 24th November 2012.

The Foundation organizes, since 1980, the World Neem Conferences, aimed at providing a platform for the scientific community to present studies in the field of Neem and share international Neem experiences. In the past edition, held in Coimbatore, South India, the Conference was attended by more than 300 delegates from 34 countries.

The Conference is organized by the Neem Foundation in collaboration with different Enterprises, Universities and Research Institutions. All people and institutions interested in attending the Conference are invited to contact the Conference Secretariat.

Neem Foundation is an Indian voluntary, independent, non-profit organization established in 1993. It is supported by leading scientists and environmentalists engaged in Neem related research. The Neem Foundation is an important international forum for individuals and institutions and for the Neem movements of all countries.

One of the Neem Foundation's most relevant activity is related to the promotion of the Neem Tree as a sustainable solution to global ecological and health concerns. In particular, the Foundation teaches farmers on how to make natural neem pest control formulas and work with authorities worldwide to expedite registration procedures for bio-pesticides and fertilizers. A wide section of the Foundation website is dedicated to Neem pest management.
